Pacific Island Countries Trade Agreement (PICTA) Review 31st August – 4th September 2015

The Pacific Island Forum Secretariat (PIFS), through the Economic Governance Program under the Hub and Spokes II initiative contracted the services of Regional Trade Adviser, Dr. Samuel Scott and National Trade Adviser Mr. Stephen Musubire, to undertake a review of the Pacific Island Countries Trade Agreement (PICTA). The objective of the review is to take stock of the progress as well as challenges encountered by the key stakeholders and implementing agencies since the entry into force of the agreement in 2003. The review also looked at an analysis of export/import data to see whether trade is actually occurring under PICTA and to assess the capacity of implementing agencies as well as recommending ways to improve such services. The final report is expected to provide concrete recommendations on how Samoa could overcome the challenges and further benefit from trading under PICTA. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs & Trade coordinated in country consultations with key stakeholders to facilitate and assist the consultant in this important undertaking from the 31st August – 4th September 2015. A validation workshop to present the findings and recommendations from this review will be undertaken in November 2015 with all the key stakeholders consulted before the report is finalized.

11th Intersessional Meeting for PACER Plus 4th – 7th August 2015

Officials from 14 Pacific island Countries (PICs) assembled at the Tanoa Tusitala Hotel in Apia for the 11th Intersessional meeting for PACER Plus negotiations. The meeting made considerable progress with the conclusion of negotiations on Development Assistance, Investment and Legal & institutional Provisions. The announcement from Australia regarding improvements in its Seasonal Worker Programme has favourably addressed the long standing requests by PICs to remove caps, expand the coverage and include all PICs under PACER Plus. The PICs have agreed in principle to the Labour Mobility arrangement provided that New Zealand improves its Recognized Seasonal Employer and Christchurch Rebuild schemes. With regards to Trade in Goods and Trade in Services, Parties have agreed to table the first round of market access offers for discussion and Samoa has compiled its initial offers based on WTO Services Schedule, PICTA Commitments, EPA market access offers as well as national consultations and will present these at the next intersessional meeting.

In noting the substantive progress made in the negotiations, it is hoped that the Parties exercise the necessary flexibility to facilitate the rapid conclusion of PACER Plus at the latest, by September 2016, and enter into force in early 2017. Australia will host the 12th Intersessional meeting and associated workshops in Melbourne from 5-9 October 2015.

Double Tax Agreement Signed in Apia 8 July 2015

Prime Minister John Key during his visit to Samoa 8th July 2015 signed a double-tax agreement with his counterpart Prime Minister Tuilaepa Lupe-soliai Sailele Malielegaoi. The DTA was first raised by the High Commissioner Leasi Papalii Scanlan in 2012 to the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance Hon Bill English with the intention to increase trade and investment between New Zealand and Samoa and reduce tax obligations for both countries during these exchanges. After much negotiation with the Inland Revenue Department of New Zealand, the Double Tax Agreement was finally signed during an announcement yesterday the day of the historical match between the Manu Samoa and All Blacks. The double-tax agreement will help reduce tax barriers to two-way trade and investment by preventing cross-border income being taxed twice. Mr Key said it would help further trade relationships between the two countries and acknowledged it would be particularly beneficial for Samoa. "New Zealand is Samoa's second largest trading partner. The agreement will provide a platform for increased trade and investment between our two countries - and will help assist the economic development of our Pacific Island neighbour." The new tax agreement will come into effect later this year once all internal procedures for both countries have been finalised

8th Annual Conference for New Zealand Recognised Seasonal Employment in Samoa Thursday 16th July 2015

The High Commissioner attended the 8th New Zealand-RSE Employers Conference which was held in Apia from 9-11 July 2015. The first time the annual meeting has been hosted outside of New Zealand. Opening the conference with a well-received address by Prime Minister Tuilaepa Sailele Malielegaoi who had extended the hosting invitation to the RSE Employers during last year's Conference in Wellington. Prime Minister Tuilaepa shared in his address that RSE Scheme will continue to provide a solid foundation for continuous development of a strong and productive relationship between the labour receiving countries and their respective horticultural industries, and the Pacific island sending countries and Government agencies. The Prime Minister also spoke of Samoa's experiences with the RSE Scheme. "With this Conference taking place in Samoa, this will provide you and the New Zealand Government the opportunity to view tangible examples of how our seasonal workers utilize their hard-earned income, to improve their lives and their communities through improved infrastructure such as schools and church facilities. From Samoa's perspective, the Scheme is an answer to the ills of labour shortage for your industries, while at the same time enabling Pacific workers to enter, work and earn in New Zealand." New Zealand's Minister of Immigration, Michael Woodhouse, also addressed the conference and touched on the financial gains of the workers as a result of the employment programme. Forty-five million from RSE Workers have made it back home to the islands. Other important developments in the last year include an increase from 8000 to 9000 for the cap on workers as well as the landmark inclusion of Fiji following democratic elections. The invaluable role by countries such as Samoa to the continued success of the employment programme is important to note, Mr Woodhouse also noted that there are greater numbers of workers returning to New Zealand each season, and highlighted an Employers Survey that showed almost all RSE Employers believed that the benefits of the Scheme far outweighed the costs. The NZ-RSE Employers Conference, attended by close to 200 participants, was held at the TATTE Convention Centre at Sogi, with the programme including a special day dedicated to visiting rural communities in Aleipata, Falealili, Lefaga and communities in Savaii.

Prime Minister Tuilaepa attends Annual Pip Fruit Conference Wellington

The Prime Minister of Samoa Hon Tuilaepa Lupe-soliai Sialele Malielegaoi was in Wellington last week as guest speaker for the Annual Pip Fruit Conference. The Conference was discussing the challenges of balancing the industry's demand for labour, while meeting the Government's requirements of using New Zealand workers first. Pip Fruit Inc is an industry association that represents close to 5,500 New Zealand commercial fruit growers and vegetable growers which provides around 50,000 jobs and exporting to more than 120 countries. The New Zealand Pip Fruit Inc and Horticulture New Zealand is valued at more than 5 billion. The Prime Minister in his address stated that because of the rapid growth of the industry, it will require a larger labour force for harvesting and Samoa and other Pacific countries are able to provide this assistance. The Recognised Seasonal Employment (RSE) held its 8th Annual Conference in Samoa in July this year and it opened discussion for workers from the Pacific Islands, to help with planting, picking, packing and pruning in the horticulture and viticulture industries. There are more than 1000 seasonal workers that come from Samoa and Prime Minister Tuilaepa Sialele Malielegaoi said the "scheme allowed workers to earn more money that were able to build new homes, improve their old foles, some bought taxis and operator businesses, others have improved the education of their children, there have been community projects that have been built from money contributed by those who came, and other have been able to be the usual possessions of modern day living - a television, a car, a refrigerator, a washing machine." The Prime Minister was accompanied by the High Commissioner Leasi Papalii Scanlan, Mr Aiono Mose Pouvi Sua, CEO, Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade and Ms Vaosa Epa, CEO, Ministry of the Prime Minister and Cabinet.

Johoku Shinkin Bank in Japan plans to donate the third "Love Commons" gift to Primary Schools in Samoa

The Johoku Shinkin Bank in Japan will be sending a donation containing 1,000 exercise books and 3,000 pencils for the school children of Samoa in early 2016. This is the 3rd consecutive year this Bank has given stationery donations to Samoa under its "Love Commons" program for selected developing countries. This year's donation for Samoa would also include clothes.

At a meeting with the General Manager, Communication Development Division and three other senior executives of the Johoku Shinkin Bank on 24th September 2015, Ambassador Faalavaau conveyed the government of Samoa's deep appreciation to the Bank for the 3rd donation, which would be valuable contributions to teaching resources in Samoa's education sector when the new academic year starts in February next year. The Embassy will continue to work with the Bank executives on the logistics of the consignment so they would arrive in Samoa in time.

This donation and like the previous two consignments, is the result of ongoing consultations and close working relationship the Embassy of Samoa in Japan has with some members of the Japanese business community and it does not involve the Government of Japan.

Japan's Prime Minister, Honourable Shinzo Abe hosts dinner reception for Female Ambassadors in Tokyo

On 24 August 2015, Prime Minister Shinzo Abe hosted a dinner reception for the female Ambassadors in Japan in the wings of the World Conference on Women (WAW), the 2nd such conference to be hosted by Japan. Women empowerment and gender equality is one of the priority areas for Prime Minister Abe's government. Each Ambassador was invited to say a few words on recent initiatives in their countries to promote women empowerment and gender equality.

Ambassador Faalavaau focused her comments on the recent enactment by Parliament of a constitutional amendment that would ensure ten percent women representation in Samoa's Parliament, to be executed in the next general election in 2016. She also highlighted the important role of women in implementing public-private partnerships for national economic growth as well as in community and grass roots development.

Of the 19 female Ambassadors in Tokyo, 13 were present at the dinner reception. Also present was Honourable Haruko Arimura, Japanese Minister for Women Empowerment.

Embassy of Samoa and Samoan community in Japan attend the Pacific Roots Fest in Yokohama, Japan, 7-9 August 2015

The Embassy of Samoa in Tokyo, Japan participated in the Pacific Roots FEST 2015, an outdoor music and cultural festival to promote cultural awareness of the Pacific region, which was held from 7 to 9 August 2015 in Yokohama, Kanagawa Prefecture, Japan. The Festival was held in conjunction with Japan's largest outdoor Hawaiian festival, Aloha Yokohama 2015. Both events drew more than 10,000 visitors over the three days. Ambassador Faalavaau and staff of the Embassy participated in the festival for the first time and set up a booth to display, sample and promote Samoan products and handicrafts with a view to ascertaining trade and investment interest in our products. The Samoan nonu juice and canned palusami received positive feedback. It was also an opportunity to provide more information on Samoa as a tourist destination, the travel routes to Samoa and to finding nice spots in Samoa to spend a holiday. In collaboration with the Embassy, the Samoan Nippon Community in Japan performed various cultural dances.

Japan donates fire-fighting trucks to Samoa

The Samoa Fire and Emergency Services Authority (SFESA) received 4 fire-fighting trucks, valued at USD 77,171 from the Society for Promotion of Japanese Diplomacy (SPJD) to support the Authority's capabilities to respond to fire emergencies in the country. Following regular consultations and discussions with the Embassy of Samoa in Japan and with funding support from Japan's Grant Assistance for Grassroots Human Security Projects provided through the Embassy of Japan in Samoa, the four emergency vehicles arrived in Samoa on 4th July. A handing over ceremony took place at the SFESA office on 17 July 2015. This is the second donation of reconditioned emergency vehicles to be donated to SFESA by The Society. Pipeline projects that have been discussed between the Embassy of Samoa in Japan and SPJD include ambulances and other medical items for the health sector as well as a mobile library for the education sector.

Delegation from Shenzhen. Signing of Sister City Agreement with Apia. 30 August- 1 September 2015.

Shenzhen, a major city in southern China has established city relations with Apia. A delegation led by Mr. Zhu Tingfeng, Deputy Secretary of the Municipal government, met with the Prime Minister, Hon. Tuilaepa Lufesoliali Malielegaoi to sign sister city agreement between the two cities. This is the first sister city agreement Apia has signed with an overseas city. The establishment of relations of the two cities will provide a platform for cultural, tourism, trade and investment links between the two cities.

Shenzhen with a population of 13 million is one of the largest cities in China with a large manufacturing base. It hosts some of the biggest technology companies in the world, such as Huawei and ZTE. In 2014, Shenzhen replaced Hong Kong to become China's most competitive city based on livability, business advantages and sustainability.

It is also an important city in the implementation of China's belt and road initiatives announced by President Xi Jinping in 2013, to build trade investment and financial cooperation as well as cultural exchanges between Asia-Pacific, Europe and Africa.
